

WASHINGTON
THEOLOGICAL CONSORTIUM

Crossroads of Faith, Learning and Dialogue

Taha Al-Alwani
Certificate in Christian-Muslim Studies

Fourteen centuries of encounter, as well as the contemporary growth and influence of ethnically diverse Muslim communities in the U.S., make Christian-Muslim studies an important competency for today's faith leaders. The Washington Theological Consortium, the Graduate School of Islamic and Social Sciences, and the Heritage Trust jointly sponsor a program in Christian-Muslim studies.

Required Courses

- Introduction to Islam (for Christian students) or Christianity (for Muslim students)
 - Interreligious Dialogue
 - Practical issues in Christian-Muslim Collaboration
 - Elective in the tradition other than one's own
-
- Pastoral Placement in a Muslim or interfaith institution (optional)

The Christian-Muslim Studies Program of the Washington Theological Consortium honors the continuing work of Dr. Taha Al-Alwani of the Graduate School of Islamic and Social Sciences, and of The Heritage Trust.

For more information contact Salih Sayilgan at salihsayilgan@gmail.com, call WTC at 202-832-2674, or visit www.WashTheoCon.org/cmstudies