

WASHINGTON
THEOLOGICAL CONSORTIUM

Crossroads of Dialogue, Faith and Learning

Invitation to the
19TH ANNUAL TACHMINDJI EVENT
FOR INTERFAITH DIALOGUE AND PEACEBUILDING

Sunday, November 3, 2019
American University in D.C.

“THE POWER OF COMMUNITY: The Journey of a Former White Supremacist.” Sunday, November 3, 4:00-7:00 pm (3:30 registration) at the School of International Service at American University, Founders Room. (FREE parking in the garage at Nebraska Avenue NW and New Mexico Avenue NW, below SIS building.) RSVP to wtc@washttheocon.org

Matthew, Allison, friend, and Derek

Three young graduates, including a former youth leader in the white supremacy movement, share their dramatic story of friendship and change.

Panel: Matthew Stevenson, Allison Gornik, and R. Derek Black.

Dr. Marc Gopin

Moderator: Dr. Marc Gopin, Director of the Center for World Religions, Diplomacy and Conflict Resolution at George Mason University.

RSVP by October 28 for admittance
wtc@washttheocon.org

As Americans face the rise of militant white supremacy and the legacy of white privilege, Dr. Gopin proposes that encounters of love and friendship are the most powerful forces for change. This story of three friends who met in college illustrates the incredible change that can take place, even for a deeply connected, former youth leader in the white supremacy movement. The program includes a conversation with panelists, open discussion, and a reception.

Event details at <https://washttheocon.org/events> or call 202-832-2675

This event is made possible by a generous endowment from Diane Tachmindji for the promotion of interfaith dialogue and peacebuilding.